<p&gt;Reply from Independent Betting Adjudication Service&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;We do understand your disappointment&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt; with this situation.&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;For the benefit of readers, the reviewer placed &#129776; a bet with a
</p&qt;
<p&gt; bookmaker on a player to score MORE than one goal in a football match.
The official</p&qt;
<p&gt; &#129776; data agency for the league in question determined that the player had only scored ONLY&It;/p&qt;
<p&gt; one goal.&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;Then, two days later, &#129776; they updated their data to say - after review - that</p&qt;
<p&gt; the player had actually scored two goals.&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;The IBAS Adjudication &#129776; Panel accepted the&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt; bookmaker&#39;s argument that there needs to be a cut off point for al
I bets, otherwise no</p&gt;
<p&gt; bet &#129776; would ever be closed in case data was amended at a late r date. The cut off point</p&gt;
<p&gt; used by this &#129776; bookmaker was the final whistle of the match.&
It;/p&qt;
<p&qt;The bookmaker&#39;s rules&lt;/p&qt;
<p&gt; clarified that any subsequent changes to match results/data would not 🫰 affect the</p&gt;
<p&gt; settlement of bets.&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;As a result the reviewer had good reason to consider themselves&lt;/p&g <p&gt; unlucky. Had the data provider &#129776; credited the second goal to the player on the day he</p&gt;
<p&gt; would have won his bet. The delay in changing &#129776; that data cau sed his bet - which would</p&gt;
<p&gt; have been a winner - to be a loser.&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;However, bad luck is &#129776; not the same as unfairness. In&lt;/p&gt
<p&gt; this case, another player was credited with the second goal and people who bet 🫰 on that</p&gt;
<p&gt; player to score will have been lucky. The reviewer was unlucky. But we did not agree</p&gt;
<p&gt; that he &#129776; was treated unfairly.&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;Kind regards&lt;/p&gt;
<p&gt;Richard&lt;/p&gt;
